

Naples artist Amy Moglia Heuerman honored in Miami-themed exhibition

Naples-based artist Amy Moglia Heuerman has been honored as one of 18 Florida abstract expressionist painters to be featured in the Miami: Pastel Paradise exhibition, which can be seen now through Oct. 30, in the Manolis Projects Gallery in Miami's downtown arts district.

The exhibition is inspired by the pastel hues of Miami's South Beach Art Deco district and includes the featured artists' pastel-colored paintings in the abstract expressionist style. Heuerman will exhibit her original painting, "Shockwave," painted exclusively for the show.

Manolis Projects Gallery is owned by J. Steven Manolis, a leading and critically acclaimed abstract expressionist artist. The Manolis Projects Gallery is Florida's largest working studio and fine art gallery, featuring artwork from more than 40 artists from throughout the world. Manolis Projects also hosts one of Florida's largest artists' salons, where artists come to exchange ideas, inspire one another and exhibit their work.

Amy Moglia Heuerman is recognized for her extraordinary versatility of expression. She is equally at ease with abstract, figurative, and nature-inspired paintings. Her work resonates with suggestions of emotion expressed in rich layers of color, shape and texture.

"I paint from the heart," she says, "And I try not to think but rather to feel when I am facing a canvas." Heuerman completes each painting at its most uplifting moment with the intention of elevating the spirits of buyers' environments.

Heuerman's artwork has been exhibited in public arts centers, hospitals and non-profit attractions in Florida, Michigan, and Nebraska; in arts fairs in Florida and Michigan; at her galleries in Naples, Fla., and Bay Harbor, Mich., and in the homes and offices of collectors nationwide.

The artist's Naples gallery is located at 28 10th Street South and open October through May on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from noon to 4 p.m. or by appointment.
